Brazil: The Troubled Rise of a Global Power
by Michael Reid

September 15th
18h30 to 20h30

Praia de Botafogo, 190,
9th floor, room 927

Michael Reid, who writes the Bello column on Latin America for The Economist, will talk about his new book, “Brasil: A ascensão turbulenta de um país” (edited by Yale University Press and Elsevier Campus).

About the author: Michael Reid is a journalist, writer and commentator on Latin American and Iberian affairs. He is currently a staff journalist with The Economist and writes the Bello column on Latin America.

He began writing for The Economist in 1990 as Mexico and Central America Correspondent and also worked as a freelance journalist based in Lima, covering the Andean countries for The Guardian and the BBC among other media outlets. He is the author of several books, including “Forgotten Continent: The battle for Latin America’s Soul” (2007) and “Brazil: The Troubled Rise of a Global Power” (April 2014), both published by Yale University Press.

Michael Reid has been awarded the Maria Moors Cabot prize by Columbia's University's Graduate School of Journalism and Brazil's Order of the Southern Cross. He is a frequent speaker on Latin American affairs to academic, business and NGO audiences, and his given testimony to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (WH Sub-Committee) and the Foreign Affairs Committee of the British House of Commons.
